THE COUNTRY FAIR HELD AT IRVINGTON A GRAND SUCCESS.

Friday and Saturday Two Big Days For the Farmers of Breckenridge and Meade--Much Live Stock and Farm Products Shown--School Children Parade Headed by Brass Band.

BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER BEFORE.

The Country Fair at Irvington scored another great success Friday and Saturday, September 28 and 29.

It was bigger and better than all previous years. The stock, the exhibits and the attendance, three points that are very necessary to the success of a fair, were great improvements and showed a wonderful progress over last year.

President Garfield once wrote: "At the head of all sciences and arts, at the head of civilization and progress stands, not militarism, the science that kills; not commerce, the art that accumulates wealth; but agriculture, the mother of all industry and the maintainer of human life."

And isn't this true, and isn't it true that agriculture is the greatest boon to humanity and to human progress of anything that is being done in this day and time for the uplift of the people and their condition? Nothing has brought this to a higher state of perfection than the farmer and the merchant. When these two factors get together in the right spirit and work together for the benefit of the community, better conditions are bound to come, just as they have come to the community around Irvington, for a good community must be a good trade center and must have good people, good farmers, good mechanics, good schools, good churches, good banks, good highways, good shipping facilities, good homes and good new papers. All these things are coming to the community around Irvington, and are permeating the whole county through the good work of the Country Fair and its sponsor, The Co. n. Clover and Stock Club, its president, secretary and members.

The farmers are doing 50 per cent. better than they did five or six years ago. Their live stock is 50 per cent. better, their crops 50 per cent. better, and their lands have increased 50 per cent., all brought about by efficiency, hard work and a spirit of pleasant rivalry to produce and show results at the Country Fair.

The weather was ideal for both days. A good first day crowd was on hand and followed the school children who were arrayed in flags and bunting and marched to the grounds headed by the Tell City brass band. Prof. Kirk was in command and marched them around the grounds several times. They showed good training and kept the step like sure enough soldiers. The Boy Scouts made a splendid showing in the maneuvers.

The parade was one of the special features of the second day at the Country Fair. Although there were not as many entries this year as there was last year, those who did enter proved that they were interested in winning the first prize.

The prize automobile, which was owned by Don Lyddan, received quite a bit of praise for its beauty and to those who had so artistically decorated it. The body of the car was covered with strips of white crepe paper, and the young ladies who rode in it were dressed in all white and carried parasols covered with the white crepe paper, and with all, it was unusually pretty and justly deserved the first prize.

The prize float was a good representation of the "Home of Plenty," the color scheme being in yellow. The float was G. N. Lyddan's and three charming little girls drove the horses.

The Irvington Red Cross Society was represented in the parade and took the second prize for the best decorated automobile.

Several cars from Gaston were in line and all of them were decorated in purple and white.

A fine horse and carriage will always attract attention, and Mrs. Don Dowell's turnout was very handsome, and took the first prize for the best decorated carriage.

The first day was given over to the exhibits and the mule, cattle and hog show.

FIFTY-SECOND ANNUAL STATE CONVENTION

Of Kentucky Sunday School to Meet in Mayesville, Oct. 16-18. Noted Workers and Musicians on the Program.

MAKE RESERVATIONS NOW

The fifty-second Annual State Convention of the Sunday Schools of Kentucky will be held in Mayesville, Ky., Oct. 16-18. Every Sunday school in the State is entitled to send three delegates. The Kentucky Sunday School Association has prepared a very attractive program which will contain something of interest for all who have any part in the Sunday Schools. The general theme will be "Christian Education for All."

The convention will open on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock with four conferences, in which will be considered the work among the children, the Teen age Department, the Adult Department, and the Organization and Management of the School. At other sessions there will be reports of the work done by the Sunday Schools of the State during the past year, plans for the new year will be presented. There will be great inspirational addresses by leading speakers.

Dr. Foote Appointed Health Officer.

Dr. Preston W. Foote has received an appointment as City Health Officer, Rosenberg, Texas. His office is in the Moers Building and has hours from 8 to 9 a. m. and 1 to 3 p. m.

Dr. Foote is a Breckenridge County man, having made his home at Bewleyville.

Visitor From Illinois.

Mr. Ben Walker of Boody, Ill., was in this city Sunday the guest of his cousins, Messrs. John Wood and Lee Wood and Mrs. Ediza Mattingly.

Mr. Walker rents a fine farm in the "Prairie" state. He has two hundred acres planted in corn which will yield sixty-five bushels to the acre.

This is Mr. Walker's first visit to Kentucky since 1900.

Entertained Before Leaving for North.

The San Soucie Club of Hardinsburg entertained Monday afternoon for Mrs. J. M. Walker, who leaves this week to join her husband, Dr. Walker, who is in North Carolina for his health.

Mrs. Alfred Taylor gave a lawn party Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Mildred Walker, who leaves with her mother, Mrs. J. M. Walker for North Carolina. The younger members of society were included in the party.

VIC ROBERTSON'S SALE.

Vic Robertson is a real live wire when it comes to doing things that are new and up-to-date in the farm and stock business. He does them on a big scale, and what he does is always for the best interest of the farmer and his business. He is the real friend of the farmer. He gives them an opportunity to better their condition by buying better farms and better stock.

His latest is a Big Public Sale of a farm and a lot of good farm mules and seventy head of Pure Bred Cattle. Here is an opportunity for the farmer to start right in the production of cattle. With foundation stock that improve as they grow older and bring top prices when placed on the market.

And the farm he is offering is just what he claims for it. Mr. Robertson's reputation for selling good farms is known far and wide, and no man who ever purchased a farm from him--and he has sold a number in the last few years--has only good words and is a pleased customer.

Mr. Robertson treats farms like he does his stock. He improves them and they improve in other men's hands. The farm he is offering in this sale is one that will improve as the years go by, not only in production but in price. It will be a real bargain to the man who gets it, and what he says of it is true, it is one of the most desirable small farms in the county. It is just an ideal place in an ideal community and in reach of the markets. If you want a farm don't miss this sale, or if you want good stock it is the place to buy them.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL TO AGED MAN.

Mr. Wethington Died Thursday Afternoon. Remains Taken to Hardinsburg for Burial. Eight Children Survive.

Mr. Raphael Wethington, age seventy five died Thursday afternoon at his home on the Hill, as a result of injuries.

Two weeks ago, Mr. Wethington was standing near by watching carpenters tear down the old Miller residence, one of the oldest homes in town, when part of the house fell and struck him knocking him down to the ground. In falling, he broke his hip and received internal injuries and since then his death has been momentarily expected.

Mr. Wethington was born in Casey county, Kentucky. He was a farmer and at one time lived in Tell City, Ind., from there he moved to Hardinsburg, Ky., before coming here.

The remains were taken to Hardinsburg Friday morning. Services were held there in the Catholic church and interment took place in the Catholic grave yard.

The deceased is survived by his widow and eight children, five daughters, Mrs. Eli Taul, Mrs. Henry Mattingly, Mrs. Henry Greenwell, Mrs. Cliff Stinnett, and Mrs. Frank Roach of Cloverport, three sons, Golan Wethington, Tell City, Ind., Paul Wethington, Hardinsburg and Elmer Wethington of Alton, Ill.

Clubs Open For the Winter.

As winter approaches, so does the time come for the opening of the different clubs among the women of the city.

On Thursday afternoon, October 4, Mrs. Edward Bowne will be hostess to the Ladies' Reading Club, this being the first meeting for the season.

Mrs. Wickliffe DeHaven opened the Wednesday Club last week when she entertained in honor of her sister, Miss Carrie May Bonner, of Texas.

This week Mrs. Shelby Conrad will have the Wednesday Club.

Death of Mrs. Hardesty.

Stephensport, Oct. 1. (Special).—Mrs. Lafa Hardesty, of near Payneville, departed this life on Wednesday morning, September 26, at 3 a. m. About a month ago Mrs. Hardesty was stricken down with typhoid fever and all that loving hands could do for her was done but to no avail.

The funeral services were conducted from Mt. Meringo church, Hardinsburg, at 10 o'clock Thursday morning by Rev. Father Hollins, and the body was laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery. Mrs. Hardesty was twenty six years old. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hardesty. She is survived by her husband and three children, one girl and two boys, ranging from seven months to five years of age. A father and mother, brothers and sisters all of whom were present at the funeral, except one brother who lives in Oklahoma and was unable to come.

Sympathy is extended to the bereaved husband and the little children, who will miss a mother's love and care.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

The "Ragged Earl" an Irish comedy, will be seen at the picture show Friday night, Oct. 5. The proceeds of the show will be added to the local Red Cross fund.

o o o

Red Cross headquarters have been changed from Oleze's Hall to the Masonic Building on account of the hall being rented for a business house.

The meetings will be held on Tuesday from now on because the work is mostly knitting and this can be done at home. The yarn for the sweaters, socks, wristlets and mufflers is due to arrive this week. There is still more hard work to be done and those who cannot knit are requested to come on Tuesday afternoons to work on the cotton sewing.

o o o

The Masonic Lodge gave the local Red Cross Society $25. last week. The donation was greatly needed and the members of the Society are especially grateful for the gift.

The Hardinsburg Red Cross Society made $125. at the Carnival given Friday night.

Rev. Baker Succeeds Rev. Dyer.

The Louisville Conference of the Methodist Church South, which was in session in Hopkinsville last week, adjourned Monday.

A few changes were made in the Owensboro District. Rev. Dyer former pastor here, was transferred to Louisville to the Marcus Lindsay Memorial church to succeed Rev. B. M. Currie who goes to Franklin.

Rev. W. L. Baker comes to Cloverport direct from the Vanderbilt University in Nashville. This is his first charge. Mrs. Baker who is a bride of a month's standing came with Rev. Baker.

The Courier's October Bargain.

While the subscription price of the Evansville Courier has been made $5.00 a year for the daily and $7.50 per year for the daily and Sunday by mail. The Courier announces that its October bargain rate will be $4.00 for the daily and $6.00 for the daily and Sunday.

The Courier is the favorite daily newspaper for thousands of people in this section, and no doubt they will be quick to take advantage of the opportunity to subscribe at the October bargain rates. The Courier is one of the most original and interesting news papers to be found anywhere and brings the news of the war, the world and the markets to our people first.

LOVE OF COUNTRY BROUGHT MANY OUT

To the "Patriotic Week" Observance on Friday Afternoon. Excellent Program: High School Pupils Take Part.

In compliance with Gov. Stanley's proclamation that last week be "Patriotic week" in the state of Kentucky, a meeting to that effect was held in the Cloverport Public School Building, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The women of the Red Cross society, about fifty in number attended the meeting in a body, besides there were several other citizens who with the 225 school children were gathered solely in the interest of our great country.

The program which was arranged and led by Supt. McCoy was entirely appropriate. The members of the Junior and Senior classes gave short quotations on the war situation which were expressions of some of the true American men and they seemed to strike the keynote of the patriotic sentiment with the audience. Those who gave quotations were: Misses Martha Reid, Louise Weatherholt, Chelra May Seaton, Lora Carson, Zivalo Kramer, May D. Chapin, Cecil Jolly, Aubrey Beavin, Jane Lightfoot and Mr. John Duke.

The musical program which followed was unusually pretty and the ones who took part were: Mrs. J. Proctor Keith, Mrs. L. T. Reid, Miss Esther Payne and Miss Tula Babbage.

Rev. A. N. Couch and J. Raleigh Meador made short talks on the "Conservation of Food."

M. D. Seaton who is a bright youngster in the graded school recited a short poem about the "Soldier Boy."

More Work for the Women.

A call has come from the Food Administration in Washington, to the woman of Kentucky to devote a portion of their time in creating and organizing between now and Oct. 21, in their county, so that on Sunday, Oct. 21, there will start out in each county parties of women who will make a house to house canvas and ask the members of the household to join the United States Food administration and pledge themselves to support its efforts in bringing about a stoppage of waste of the food resources.

Fire in Irvington.

The warehouse, owned by Mr. LeBus of Louisville where the Country Fair was held last week in Irvington was burned to the ground Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

It is supposed the fire originated from a coal oil stove which was used where the lunches were served at the fair and had been left in the building.

Mr. Paul Wilson had part of his crop of tobacco in the house and had just taken out a $1,000 fire insurance.

$450 Asked of Breckinridge County.

Mrs. L. T. Reid was in Hardinsburg Saturday in the interest of organizing committees in Breckinridge county to raise money for the library at Camp Zachary Taylor.

This county has been allotted the sum of $450 and Mrs. Reid was appointed chairman to raise the amount. She will appoint on her committee representatives from each town in the county whose names will be published later.

Clean Up The Weeds.

Next week is "Big" court week at Hardinsburg. There will be a big crowd in attendance. The county seat ought to set a good example to other towns in the county. Clean up the streets get all the weeds out of sight and everything else that is unsightly. It might help us down here in Cloverport where weeds are the most conspicuous sights on the streets. Weeds are not good for any town, they are only to kill.

Seriously Ill.

Mr. W. C. Dowell whose home is in Hardinsburg and who is employed in the hardware and implement department of B. F. Beard & Co's. store is seriously ill with typhoid fever. His father came to Hardinsburg Monday to be with his son.

Mr. Roscoe Eskridge of Hardinsburg is also critically ill and probably will not recover. He is suffering from paralysis.

WOULD PERMIT PHONE MERGER BY AMENDMENT

FRANKFORT CHAMBER OF COM-
MERCE GOES ON RECORD
FOR ONE SYSTEM PLAN

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED

Submission Passed By General Assembly With Only One Dissenting
Vote—History Of Competition

The Frankfort Chamber of Commerce by the action of its Board of Directors is on record in favor of and has pledged its efforts to the adoption of a constitutional amendment at the November election permitting telephone companies operating in this state to purchase competing lines.

The action of the Chamber of Commerce board, taken with a view of effecting economy by eliminating unnecessary phones, was given expression in the following resolution:

"Whereas, the General Assembly at its 1916 session adopted a Constitutional Amendment to be submitted to the voters of the state for ratification at the November, 1917, election, under the terms of which, with the approval of the state authorities and the City Council of the city in which the telephone companies are located, one telephone company may purchase the lines of another, be it

"Resolved, That the Frankfort Chamber of Commerce endorse the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment and urge the voters of Franklin county and the State-at-large to vote for the amendment at the ensuing November election, and be it further

"Resolved, That the President of the Chamber of Commerce be authorized to appoint a committee to aid in whatever manner it can in bringing the Constitutional Amendment to the attention of the voters and other commercial bodies."

History Of Amendment.

The Constitutional amendment passed by the 1916 General Assembly, authorizing the purchase of the telephone lines, passed the Senate with only one dissenting vote and encountered no opposition whatever in the House. The representatives of both parties recognized that only by means of this amendment to the Constitution could the state be saved the annoyance and expense of two telephone systems in the same community.

Some of the larger cities, particularly Cincinnati, New York and Washington, early recognized that two telephone systems were an unnecessary burden on the community and never granted to more than one company a franchise for a telephone system, with the result that every telephone user in each of these cities is in direct communication with every other subscriber.

Burden In Kentucky.

In Kentucky, in the early stages of the development of the telephone business, numerous small companies were organized. They did not connect, different kinds of equipment were used and the standard of maintenance was not universal, which retarded the advancement of telephone development in keeping with other states more progressive. Nearly every community in Kentucky has, at some time in its history, experienced a telephone war that engendered hard feelings, as each side had its partisans, and the public has been deprived of the convenience and economy that one telephone system affords.

The public interest is thoroughly protected under the proposed Constitutional amendment, as no purchase can be made without the consent of the City Council. The passage of the bill, providing for the Constitutional Amendment and the practically unanimous vote it received in the General Assembly is evidence that it was passed in response to a wide-spread and popular demand for relief from present telephone conditions.

BEECH FORK

The farmers in this neighborhood are busy cutting their tobacco.

Mrs. J. M. Beatty has returned from Roseville where she visited her son, Jay Beatty and family a few days.

The neighbors cut and housed Everett Pate's crop of tobacco of four acres last Friday. Mr. Pate has been down with typhoid fever all fall but is better now.

Mr. Armstrong of Oaklahoma has come to spend sometime with his daughter, Mrs. Garfield Fucker.

Mr. Keith of Cloverport was in this neighborhood Wednesday and erected a monument at the grave of Rufus Pate.

BUSY DAYS ON THE RIVER.

Passing of the Old Louisville and Evansville Mail Line -A Story of Steamboating in Days of Long Ago.

By Edward Gregory.

When Capt. Penny was made superintendent he never relinquished the captain's place on his favorite boat, the Tarascon. But way back yonder in the early days he had picked up Fred Zill, a German by birth, with grim determination to go up the rungs of the steamboat ladder. He started in as a mere laborer on one of Capt. Penny's boats, the Guthrie, and no matter what boat Penny was on Fred Zoll went, and finally reached head mate. Just before Capt. Penny retired he made Zoll captain of the Tarascon.

Of all the above mentioned captains, they have answered their last hail and crossed the river of the great divide.

The boom under Geo. Wilson's management was short-lived. The railroad had sapped their strength; the mail contracts had been lost. All the boats in the lower river had gone to the banks. Capt. Crammond had gone out of the business, and soon the Morning Star was sold, thus leaving only two boats, the Tarascon and Tell City, but the advent of the gasoline steamers soon drove them also to the bank. They were advertised for sale for debt and went under the hammer to a company organized out of Evansville with Capt. Tom Williams as superintendent. The two boats were again placed back in the Louisville and Evansville trade, and after a few years of business the Tell City was sold to parties in the upper Ohio and recently sank, and the sailing of the Tarascon has practically ended the long service of names of popular boats once near and dear to the hearts of all the people along the Ohio, where for years the whistles of these boats was so familiar to older generations as well as the new. It is practically the ending of once a prosperous business that has passed after over half a century.

The golden sun has sunk in the West and the mantle of night is clothing the distant hills down in the bend in darkness. As the moon rising in the East is faintly casting its shimmering light over the waters, I stroll down to the old upper wharf—once the scene of so many activities—now grown up in a wilderness of willows. Seating myself on an old drift log and fixing my pipe for a fresh smoke, I gaze down on the old wharf long ago abandoned. Great holes all along the old levee have been washed out, and as the deep gloom of night settles down over the nearby hills, all is still and quiet save the squack of a night bird flying over the water in search of its food, or the occasional splash of the kick as he comes to the surface. And as I sit there dreaming of the past, the rent of gloom is lifted and I see the shades of the past in memory once dear to me.

Through the lifting of the darkness I see the old James Guthrie and Rainbow lying at the wharf, and by their side the big sidewheel steamer Andy Baum, of the Cincinnati and Memphis line, and just coming in the big Thomas Sherlock, of the Southern Transportation line, while in mid-stream there goes the sternwheel Dakota passing on her trip to St. Louis loaded to her guards and roof piled high with light freight. I once more hear singing of the darkies and the "cussing" of the mates in their endeavor to get away. Everybody's either laughing, singing or joking one another, and then we see the old wharf again being piled with freight. There they go, both the wharfmaster directing where to stack the freight, and there goes Phil Gregory with his short bowlegs, checking the freight, and the teamsters are there waiting for their turn at the freight pile. Big Tom Adams, who could handle a barrel of coal oil as easily as a keg of nails; Wesley Steele with Jack and Kate; Elisha Collins smoking his stone pipe; Charles Morris with his wooden leg and yoke of oxen, and Dick May, who never was known to get a big enough load to suit him. Then there stood at the upper end of the car John Bibbage's old mule, Kate, who never missed a boat no matter whether she had a driver or not. She went in a trot at the first blast of the boat's whistle, but all the whips in Cloverport could not get her out of a walk on her trip back from the boat.

I hear the old Guthrie's bell tap as of old, the chug, chug of the captain drawing up the stage, the merry shouts of the passengers and crew as she draws out into the stream. The crowd on shore are waving their hats and I, too, join in, only to knock the dying ember from my pipe which quickly brings me back from my dreams. And when I open my eyes to gaze upon the busy scene, the ethereal lights have faded away and the vision of by-gone days has faded away into the mist that is settling down over the water, I look up the river and down the river and not a sign of a boat anywhere, for a shroud of darkness and stillness has settled down over the old wharf. A little screech owl perched in a nearby cottonwood, at the sight of me ceases his plaintive call, and as I pick my way back over the rough boulders home ward bound I mutter to myself: "The day of steamboating has gone forever more."

BIG SPRING

Mrs. Lewis Jenkins left for her home near Louisville Saturday after a stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Dowell.

War Has Effected Newport.

"Like thousands of other places, Newport has been made over by the war. The very streets look different; the spirit of its people has undergone a sweeping transformation. Although this is true of every other city, yet I think it is most evident in Newport for in the past the spirit of Newport activities have been the activities of society, and in many ways it has been a social model for the rest of America."

Mrs. French Vanderbilt is the authority for this statement. She has written for the October issue of Harper's Bazar an article on the Red Cross and other war relief work in Newport.

Naturally, with such serious work on all sides, the character of Newport has changed completely. And the cause for this change was the visit of the "U-53." The people of Newport had to house and care for the victims of this merciless raider of the seas. They were, however, not prepared for this sort of thing, and on realizing it they built up, without any loss of time, a very efficient Red Cross organization, and now everyone is engaged in some kind of war relief work.

McDANIELS

Mr. Sam Davis who has been ill for some time passed away Saturday morning. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Allen Sunday morning at the Methodist church at McDaniels.

Public Sale Farm and Live Stock

Hardinsburg, Kentucky

25 Mules = 70 Cattle

I will offer at Public Auction this farm containing 97 acres, situated 2 miles from Hardinsburg, Ky., lying along the L., H. & St. L. Railway, one-half mile from Harned, Ky., a Pike being built along its borders, and in my opinion it is the most beautiful and most desirable little farm in Breckinridge county; a new 6-room dwelling, abundant water, all necessary out-buildings and stock barn, 70 acres perfectly set in grass, balance cultivated in corn and tobacco this season; a beautiful home surrounded by good people, good society and best of morals. Terms made known on day of sale.

25 mules from 3 to 6 years old, a good kind, the kind that will grow, and the kind that will feed and make money. 70 head of pure bred Poll Durhams, Herefords and Poll Angus heifers, weighing from 500 to 800 pounds each; no better opportunity could be afforded our farmers to select Foundation Herds. No by-bids, these cattle will sell at highest bid. To encourage Breckinridge county farmers to breed better grades of cattle, if desired. I am going to sell these cattle on 4, 6 and 12 months' time, with interest and approved security. This is to be a real sale with no definite protection to the seller and a positive guarantee to the buyer.

Sale To Begin Promptly at 12 o'clock, Noon, Wednesday, October 10th, 1917

Arrangements will be made with Railroad Company to allow West bound train arriving at Hardinsburg at 11:14 a. m., from Irvington, Ky., to permit passengers to get off of train at the farm. I earnestly solicit, and invite all farmers of Breckinridge and adjoining counties, to attend this sale Wednesday, October 10, 1917.

Respectfully,
VIC ROBERTSON, Hardinsburg, Ky.

LOUISVILLE BRANCH RAILROADS' WAR BOARD

Reports just compiled for the Railroads' War Board indicate that the traveling public in general and the shippers in particular are giving the finest kind of co-operation to the railroads in the handling of the increased traffic that the war has produced. What this co-operation means may be gleaned from these facts. Since May 1st the railroads aided by the loyalty and undersanding of the public have been able to reduce their passenger service by approximately 25,000,000 miles. This has released thousands of train crews and locomotives for use in the freight service and cleared thousands of miles of track thereby facilitating the movement of coal, food products and supplies needed by the government. In addition to the foregoing saving of equipment and trackage the shippers, big and small, have rallied so splendidly to the slogan "Make One Car Do the Work of Two" that a saving of close to half a million freight cars has been accomplished. This saving of freight cars has enabled the railroads to move approximately 25 per cent more freight since war was declared than during the same period last year.

Intensive loading and a general increase in the size of the "trade units" used by the various industries has rendered possible the saving of car space. Cotton for instance which was formerly moved in units of fifty bales, now moves only in units of 65 and 75. As there are 18,000,000 bales to be moved by rail each season the increase in the trade unit in this one commodity alone has produced a saving of anywhere from $3,000 to 125,000 cars. Sugar on which the car load minimum from the South was formerly only 24,000 pounds per car, now moves only on a 60,000 carload minimum. The producers of manufactured food products, especially the canners have also come to a realization of the value of intensive loading and are now loading virtually all of their cars to capacity. Coal which has been loaded beyond capacity on most lines since the beginning of the war is also moving freely now, although labor trouble in some parts of the country is tending to counteract the efforts of the railroads to meet the abnormal demand for fuel. During the past month the supply of cars on the "Lake Coal" lines has been increased 25 per cent and there has been some increase in the movement of bituminous coal to the lake ports, but it has not been proportionate to the increase the mine production. Although excellent results have been achieved to date through the co-operation of the shippers, the traveling public and the railroads, it will be necessary for all concerned to exert renewed efforts as the abnormal demands upon the railroads in the movement of both troops and supplies is constantly increasing while the securing of new equipment is virtually impossible. From now on twenty five hundred cars a day will be required by the government to move food and supplies to the men in training at the National Army, National Guards and other encampments while the demand of the Allies for cars to carry export goods to the seaports will be practically doubled. All of this additional traffic must be moved by the railroads although they have only 3 per cent more equipment than they had at this time last year.

PRESIDENT WILSON CALLS ON SCHOOL CHILDREN TO AID RED CROSS

Washington, Sept. 19.—President Wilson issued a proclamation calling upon the school children of the nation to do their part in the war by joining the Junior Red Cross to assist in the mercy work of the senior organization.

The proclamation follows: "To the School Children of the United States.—A Proclamation; The President of the United States is also president of the American Red Cross. It is from these offices joined in one that I write you a word of greeting at this time when so many of you are beginning the school year.

"The American Red Cross has just prepared a junior membership with school activities in which every pupil in the United States can find a chance to serve our country. The school is the natural center of your life. Through it you can best work in the great cause of freedom to which we have all pledged ourselves.

"Our Junior Red Cross will bring to you opportunities of service to your country and to other communities all over the world and guide your service with high and religious ideals. It will teach you how to save in order that suffering children elsewhere may have the chance to live. It will teach you how to prepare some of the supplies which wounded soldiers and homeless families lack. It will send to you through the Red Cross bulletins the thrilling stories of relief and rescue. And, best of all, more perfectly than through any of your other school lessons, you will learn by doing those kind things under your teacher's direction to be the future good citizens of this great country which we all love.

"And I commend to all school teachers in the country the simple plan which the American Red Cross has worked out to provide for your co-operation, knowing as I do that school children will give their best service under the direct guidance and instruction of their teachers. Is not this perhaps the chance for which you have been looking to give your time and efforts in some measure to meet our national needs?

"WOODROW WILSON,
"President."

Fair at Irvington last Friday and Saturday were, Prof. H. A. Ater, Mrs. Ater and children, Dr. Ferguson, and Mrs. Ferguson and baby, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Morgan, Mrs. C. A. Tinnis, Mrs. W. J. Dieckman, V. R. Dodson and Miss Mable Shellman.

How Much Money Do You Need To Be Happy?

The American Magazine asked this question a few months ago. The best answers are published in the October issue. One of them is:

"How much money do I need to be happy? That's easy, American Magazine. I can answer that without even taking time to stare into the fire or bat an eyelash—$2,080 a year. That is enough to live comfortably, save some, and do our share in the social and religious life of which we are a part. Friends, friends are gift of God and can neither be bought nor sold, so money cannot enter into this phase of the question, for, whether I were a tincup beggar a bloated bondholder, or just a fair to middling everyday person, true friends are still friends. Now, why the specific amount, $2,080 a year? Why not $2,000 or $2,500? For the simple reason that $2,080 is the exact amount that my Peter makes, and because with love enough the amount of money to make one happy is just what one's got."

Farmers, Mechanics, railroads, laborers, rely on Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil Fine for cuts, burns, and bruises. Should be kept in every home. 30c and 60c.

Water For Hogs.

It is important that a plentiful supply of clear water be kept before the hogs at all times. Hogs that have the range of a cornfield do not go to the trough at the same time to drink, as they do in dry lot feeding; consequently the occasional watering, as frequently practiced in dry lot feeding, will not suffice for hogs feeding in the cornfield. More complete digestion takes place and more economical gains result when hogs receive all the water they care to consume than when the supply is limited and irregular.

Lime For Poultry.

If your poultry range is gravelly or has gravelly areas the birds can pick up enough lime for shell and bone making, but if it is clayey it is well to supply grit and pounded oyster shells the year around. A pound of coarsely ground oyster shell is said to contain enough lime for about seven dozen eggs.

THE NEW TAX LAW.

Mr. Kentuckian, have you taken note of the fact that within little more than a month the citizens of this Commonwealth will be listing their possessions for taxation under our modern tax law.

The new tax law provides for a number of departures in the methods of assessing railroads and banks, but the average citizen is most concerned in the matter of individual assessment. These will follow very much the same lines as in previous years; with the exception of certain classes of property. These peculiar classes will hereafter pay only State taxes and they have been listed in a short summary of the new law prepared by Chairman Logan, of the State Board. They are as follows:

1. Farm implements and farm machinery owned by a person actually engaged in farming and used in his farm operations.

2. Machinery and products in course of manufacture owned by persons or firms actually engaged in manufacturing and the raw material actually on hand to be used for the purpose of manufacturing.

3. Money in hand, notes, bonds, accounts and other credits whether secured by mortgage, pledge or otherwise, or unsecured; shares of stock in corporations which do not pay taxes on one-fourth of their total property in this State; shares of stock in a corporation are exempt from taxation in the hands of the individual owner if the corporation pays taxes on at least one-fourth of its entire property in the State of Kentucky.

All of the kinds of property named in the above paragraphs, it must be understood, are exempt from both county and municipal taxation. They must be listed, and the penalty to do this is very severe. They will be subjected, when listed, to the State tax of 40 cents.

It is, of course, impossible to predict with certainty how the new tax system is going to work out in practice, but it is very essential, if it is to get a fair trial, that everybody understands his part in the listing of property for taxation. The theory of the system is that a large amount of personal property, which has before been hidden away because of the confiscatory weight of the triple state, county and municipal assessments, will now make its advent into daylight and onto the tax revenue roster of the State.—Paducah News-Democrat.

HE FOLLOWS "THE GOLDEN RULE."

Mr. Bailes, the efficient and successful manager of the Golden Rule Store, has moved his belongings to this town. He likes our town. It is a much better town than he thought when he first came into it. That is why he decided to stay with us. The Golden Rule Store is no shoddy affair, but a good clean store, well managed and well advertised. They believe in advertising. Why? Because it pays and their business shows it. If other merchants in this town would let loose of themselves and put some ginger and enthusiasm into their business by advertising, they would see and feel the effects of it. The farmers in this community and all over this county are going to have, and a lot of them already have, bushels of money. The farmer is a good spender and a good buyer. He reads and studies prices, and he generally goes where he is invited and where he can get what he wants at the right price. The mail order houses have known this for a long time and they have been cultivating his acquaintance and telling him through their catalogs what they have and at what price. Now it is up to the local merchants to do the same thing and keep this business at home. The only way to do it is to advertise. This is a good town, the best in Breckenridge county, and the best town between Louisville and Owensboro. And with the bumper crops and sky-high prices for farm products, and a pay roll at the shops of $11,000 a month, besides our Tile and Roofing factory, Button factory and an up-to-date ferry across the Ohio river, all with good pay rolls, and one of the best country newspapers in the State, (we say this advisedly,) to carry the messages of the merchants to the buyers. Why shouldn't we wake up and get busy?

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

The Breckenridge County Examining Board, composed of Dr. Spilner, Sheriff A. T. Beard and Mr. Lee Walls, deserves considerable commendation for their excellent services in examining the drafted men for the National Army.

Of all the men who have gone from county—fifty-four in number if our memory serves us right—not one of them have failed to pass the final examination on entering Camp Zachary Taylor. This is a credit and honor to the members of the board. It proves that they have been faithful and conscientious in doing their duty and they have given every drafted man a fair chance.

It is a compliment to be asked to serve on the examining board, although it is very hard work and very costly, but it is indeed one, if not the most important part in helping to win the war, and we feel that these men have truly done their bit and will continue their splendid services until all of the draftees have been examined.

The farmer's success is due to his application of the arts and sciences of good agriculture. There was a time when he spurned "book farming," as he called it. The Government is teaching him, with the aid of agricultural colleges, bulletins and county farm agents he is applying their methods to good advantage. Some farmers are yet in the ruts and will continue to be until they study up on their business.

With a bumper corn crop and from $15 to $20 being offered for a fine yield of tobacco, the farmers of Breckenridge county have no cause to complain of the high prices of other products than that produced on the farm. Still there are many who kick at paying $1.50 for the Breckenridge News, when we in turn pay $2.50 for a twenty-four pound sack of flour and "saw wood and say nothing."

The street leading up to the school building is in a wretched condition. If there is a street in Cloverport that should be kept up this is the one. Practically two-thirds of the children who attend school have to use this street, and something should be done before winter sets in.

It is said that whale meat is very palatable when properly prepared. There being no whales in this vicinity, and if the price of whalesteak is as high as beefsteak, it makes very little difference to us whether it is palatable or not.

The farmer is now coming into his own. He is now, or soon will be, the capitalist of the country. If you don't believe this, ask the banks.

We have solved the high-cost-of-meat problem. Here it is: Let every other day be Good Friday and sleep the rest of the time.

Let's have a clean up week in Cloverport right away. If we don't, typhoid fever will have a clean up year.

FARM AND STOCK.

H. H. Norton has 85 head of cattle, feeders, grazing for the market.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Triplett have returned from a three months visit to their children living in Missouri, Illinois and Iowa. They had a grand trip. Found their children all well and doing well. Mr. and Mrs. Triplett have 11 children and 35 grandchildren all living.

R. Carman & Son, of Guston, have turned down an offer of $24 for their crop of 9,000 pounds of Burley.

Overton Blanford sold Tom Wilson his crop of 4,000 pounds of Burley at $20 per hundred.

Mrs. G. O. Bailey, of Irvington, has 31 fine young turkeys for the Thanksgiving market. Mrs. Bailey won the first prize on best display of vegetables at the Country Fair.

R. D. St. Clair, of Webster, has a fine crop of Burley. He is holding for the opening market.

Mrs. J. V. Norris, of Big Spring, had on exhibition a sample of fine fall strawberries. They were planted in April and have been bearing ever since July. They attracted a good deal of attention as strawberries in September are something unusual in this section.

J. W. Haggins, Irvington, route 1, has 12,000 pounds of fine Burley. He wants $3.00 for the crop.

Vic Robertson paid Earl Bennett $450 for a pair of fine mules at the fair.

The First State Bank, Irvington, sold the Dr. Foote farm to Irvin Mercer and Thos. Chappell for $7,000. Jake Sipes 186 acres to C. L. Trent, price private.

S. M. Haynes says he will have 5,000 pounds of Burley, 14,000 pounds of dark and 1,200 bushels of corn on his place near Garfield. He turned down an offer of $20 round for the Burley and $12.50 round for the dark.

Joe Clark, the Payneville nurseryman, was at the fair with a sample of his trees. He found good sales for them. Mr. Clark said he sold Charlie Smith 1,000 Jonathan apple trees twelve years ago. This year Mr. Smith sold off of these trees 400 barrels of apples for $2,000. They have been good producers in other years.

William Hall sold Harry Norton, of Webster, twenty head of pigs for $608.

Harry Bell, a progressive young farmer of Guston, was taking in the Country Fair and was enjoying it. He picked up two yearling mules from Sam Green and Levy Cleaver for $60 each. Harry believes in mules as money makers.

Geo. Hix Andersen, of Guston, was a pleasant visitor at the fair. He says he has been doing all his own work on his farm this year, something he hasn't done before in fifteen years. It was a case of have-to, he said, and he was very glad that it was put up to him to do it. He felt better and had a better crop and enjoyed the work.

Andy Hardesty sold 240 acres to Rolly Miller for $4,000. Rolly Miller sold 200 acres to Will McCoy for $1,700.

Geo. N. Lyddan, proprietor of Park Place near Irvington, captured the first prize for the best display of farm products. Premium $10, given by First State Bank. Following is a list of products in his display: Five varieties of pumpkins, three of cantaloupes, two of sweet potatoes, four of peppers, two of tomatoes, two of cabbage, two of okra, six of beans, two of Lima beans, two of turnips, two of beets, four of garden corn, six of field corn, popcorn, Irish and sweet potatoes, parsnips, salsafy, kale, egg plant, rhubarb, onions, cucumbers, head lettuce, radishes. Fruits—two varieties grapes, three of apples, two of pears, quinces, peaches, persimmons, watermelons, citrons, strawberry and raspberry plants, hickory nuts, walnuts and acorns. Fine display of canned goods, field corn, clover, alfalfa and field seeds.

Oscar Dowell was awarded second prize for best display of farm products. Mr. Dowell has a fifty acre farm and does all his own work, beside he is a rural route carrier. This display attracted a good deal of attention and showed what one man can produce on a small farm. Following is the list: Five varieties of corn, twelve of pumpkins, eight of squashes, three of sweet potatoes, three of tomatoes, sorghum, sweet and red clover, stock peas, Feti veta, a plant that produces seed and fodder for stock, sample of Teonite for ensilage, produces 50 or 60 tons to the acre, sunflowers, peaches, egg plant, cucumbers, beets, cabbage, onions, radishes, peanuts, tobacco, 50 pound pumpkin, stock peas. Besides all this he has twelve acres in corn, five acres in stock peas, one and a half acres in tobacco. If any man can beat this production on 50 acres we would like to hear from him.

The Human Factors In Good Service

There are three parties to every telephone conversation—the party calling, the trained operator, and the party who answers. All three share alike the responsibility for quick and accurate telephone service.

The calling party should give the correct number in a distinct voice, speaking directly into the transmitter, and wait at the telephone until the party answers or the operator reports. The called party should answer promptly.

Patience on the part of the telephone user and the telephone operator is also essential to good service.

You Can Afford A GRANT SIX

PERHAPS you think you cannot afford a motor car because you think that a satisfactory car must cost $1100 or $1200. But if you will look over the Grant Six at $875 you will find that you can buy a full-sized, full-powered five passenger car with every improvement and refinement and that you can run this car for a good deal less than you think.

The Grant Six gets, on an average, 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline, 900 miles to a gallon of oil and 7000 miles or more out of a standard tire.

It is so sturdily built that your repair bills are extremely slight. Above all it is a car for the "first-car" buyer because its economy and dependability do not demand experience in running a car.

You want a car—everybody does. Get a Grant Six now and enjoy it. It will give you everything including looks, that any car up to $1100 can give you.

Fame.

What appeared to be a beautiful moth I chased across the fields. *** Breathless and with beating heart I ran, stumbling upon the sharp rocks, tearing my way through the underbrush, slipping often into the mire, but never losing sight of the fiery colored creature, elusive and beautiful. # The Girl Who Was A Soldier Boy

HOW I WENT "OVER THERE" WITH PERSHING'S DIVISION
By HAZEL CARTER

Mrs. Hazel Carter of Douglas, Ariz., is a young woman, twenty-two, whose young husband, Corporal John J. Carter of the United States army, was ordered to France with the Pershing expedition.

Determined to accompany him, she obtained a soldier's uniform and fell in as a private on his departure. She was five days at sea on the transport before discovered through a chance. After the arrival of the famous division in France she was returned home against her wishes.

It is a story of romance, dramatic in its qualities, full of the soldier color and still is of real news value, since Mrs. Carter is the first to relate the details of that voyage and safe arrival first hand—one that made history.

COPYRIGHT, 1917, BY THE BELL SYNDICATE

CHAPTER I

I Decide to Go to France.

IT'S a long way from Douglas, Ariz., to "some port in France," but I made the trip rigged up as a dough-boy, and I would go farther than that to be near my husband. However, the "old man," as every commanding officer is called in the army, sent me back on the same transport after I had spent five days in port within sight of my husband, but out of reach, and five nights walking the floor and without sleep.

I am going back again and pay my own way and get behind the lines and take care of the boys I know so well when they are hit. The income from these stories is going to help pay my fare, and then I won't have to fool the officers, as I did, with the regulation salute and "heels on the same line and as near to each other as the conformation of a man permits, knees straight without stiffness, body erect, from the hips inclining slightly forward; shoulders squared and falling equally, arms and hands hanging naturally, back of hands outward, little finger opposite seam of trousers, head erect, chin slightly drawn in without constraint, eyes looking straight in front, catching about fifteen paces forward. That is the position of a soldier." * * * I fooled them all right.

I think the authorities were mean not to permit me to land in France. As long as I was there, it seems to me, they might have stretched a point and allowed me to have had a look at the war. But they were firm. They said letting me by might set an example for other girls to follow and the first thing they knew Uncle Sam would have a troop of lady soldiers on his hands.

At that, I cannot see why I shouldn't be a soldier—and a good one too. My grandfather fought in the civil war. My father was a regular in the Seventh cavalry. I am the wife of a soldier, one of the bravest, best Sammies under the flag. He is over there now on the job, doing his bit to make the world safe for democracy, as they say. And I am over here praying he won't stop a German whizz-bang while at it.

Exactly when the idea of posing as a "rookie" came to me I do not remember. My husband, John J. Carter, was a corporal in the Eighteenth infantry, encamped at Douglas, Ariz. He belongs to K company. There was a lot of talk among the boys for a long time about being ordered out. None of them knew where the Eighteenth would be sent. They used to come to our house in Pritleville, right outside of Douglas, when they were off duty and do a heap of surmising and guessing. Some of them thought they would be kept on the border to see that things remained quiet there and kid with the Mexicans. Others had a hunch they would follow Pershing to France. The old timers were pulling for the latter.

As I look back now I must have had the germ of the idea in the back of my head even then, though I never voiced it to myself. You see, I was married only last December, and the thought of my husband going away and leaving me behind stirred my imagination. We went together for a year and a half before we dug up the parson. I wish I had that year and a half with him now.

One day Corporal Carter came home from the supply depot, where he had been on guard duty. The minute I saw his face I knew he had his orders. He was not excited, because he is an old timer at soldiering. He told me he was leaving the next day under secret orders. There was not much warning. The troops just packed up and left.

I did not tell him I was going, too, because he knows I always go through with anything I take a notion to do and it might have worried him. But I had determined to make a try at it any how. That evening and the next morning, while he was busy attending to the details of packing and getting off, I was pretty busy myself. I knew where there was a discarded khaki uniform, regulation army, that would fit me. By the uniform I mean the trousers, coat, shirt and campaign hat.

Ready to March.

Getting the rest of my wardrobe was easy. I bought shoes, boy's size, which looked exactly like the army shoes. Canvas leggings and boy's underwear completed the outfit. I was ready and eager to be on the march. I was twenty-two and full of health and boyish in appearance.

My husband said his farewell about noon. He was pretty blue, because he thought it would be goodbye for a long time, perhaps for always. But he is first, last and always a soldier, and he did it as a soldier should. I suppose he wondered that I took it so calmly, but of course he thought it was on the level and didn't realize what I had decided—had no hint of it, in fact.

No sooner was he out of sight than I began to do some very tall hustling. I went to a lady barber and told her I wanted my hair cropped close to my head, soldier style. I had an unusually good head of hair, long, luxuriant and black. The barber almost wept when I insisted it had to go. She cut it so I could part it on the side. The only time during the operation I had a pang of regret was when she began shaving my neck. The razor made me realize I was in for something mighty big. I had a good laugh when I took my first peek in the mirror at myself as a boy. I wasn't bad. The lady barber did not laugh. The sight of such a sacrifice seemed to make her sad. She told me most folks wanted to grow hair—not lose it.

After the hair cut it did not take me very long to jump into my uniform. I have spent much of my life on a ranch, where I wore riding breeches or bib overalls, so the clothes were familiar to me and did not feel strange. I was right at home in them. I never was happier in my life than when I took stock of my make-up, a sure enough soldier and said to myself—very positively:

"I'm going with John and the troop." I left the house just as it was. It seemed a small matter to me at a time like this. Reluctantly, I had promised my husband I would go to his family in Kentucky and remain there until his return. Instead of this, I found myself in an automobile speeding for Douglas, where the troops were even then entraining. With me was "Tuffy," my bulldog. That was the only hurt, leaving Tuffy. I would have tried to get her enlisted in K company as a mascot, only they do not allow dogs.

Everything was confusion around the station. Soldiers and civilians were hurrying here and there. Girls were bidding their sweethearts clinging goddys. Mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, friends—every one was there to give goodspeed. The soldiers themselves seemed to be in the best of spirits. They laughed and joked and acted like men who were going away on a big holiday, although there was a strain of seriousness through it all that made a lump rise in your throat every now and then.

I did not linger long outside the train for fear I might be recognized, though it was difficult to single out any strange soldier, because there were so many raw rookies who had just enlisted and had not had time to get acquainted much. I figured that the cook car would be the safest place, because there I could be busy doing something, and it would be easier for me to get by unnoticed. So when the cooks came along I fell in with them and went into the car. They thought I was a new one and never paid any attention to me. Of course, my long connection with the army helped me, since I knew the regulations and customs better than most of the rookies.

Dog Almost Betrays Her.

Tuffy almost spilled the beans for me. She had given the chauffeur who was to take care of her while I was gone the slip and gone out on a still hunt for me. You can fool a man, but you cannot fool a dog. The minute she spied me she came on the run, with a yelp and leap. Quite a lot of the older men knew my dog, and I thought every minute they would notice her violent attentions. I tried to chase her away. She seemed to regard this as an invitation and barked happily. I grew cross and pushed her aside, ordering her home. She stood and looked at me in a surprised way. I could not seem too familiar with her and play my part. I had to treat her as a strange dog. As I was boarding the train she came after me with a bound. I pushed her away from the steps and walked up. Poor Tuffy, she wanted to be a soldier the worst way. I hated to leave her. She was the only one to say goodbye to me, and I had to treat her as a stranger.

There were some nervous moments before that train pulled out. I kept in the background as much as I could. After what seemed to me years there came a tense moment and a chorus of "goodby, good luck, God bless you." The cars began to move. We were on our way to join Pershing.

"Look out there, rookie, or the first thing you know you'll be fixing a mess of pig's knuckles and sauerkraut for some Germans."

One of the old boys from the camp, a man in my husband's company, whom I knew was speaking. It was the first time I had been directly addressed:

had to do something. It was now or never.

"Aw, quit your kiddin'!" I answered boldly. "No Fritz can get me a prisoner."

The soldier passed on. I had changed my tone and talked slow. It sounded good. My first danger was over. I had fooled a man who knew me.

Sleeping quarters had been assigned to the men. I did not know exactly what I was going to do, because I was an extra and nothing had been provided for me. I might have to sit up all night hidden away. But soon I saw the lines were not so strictly drawn. In the confusion of getting settled I grabbed a place and acted as if it belonged to nobody but me. I was in a compartment. Two other soldiers were there with me.

We were well into New Mexico before I ventured forward into the troop cars. The men were having a great time, singing and talking and calling back and forth. You would never have guessed they had said goodbye to those they loved only a few hours before. If there was any one among them inclined to weaken at their prospects he was too much of a man to show it. In one car where there was a number of good voices they were harmonizing on the barber shop chord. Some one struck a blue note. There was almost as much commotion as if it had been a dudmum bullet. Soldiers always sing.

The men had eaten a hearty dinner. They were tired from the bustle and heart wrench of getting off. They began to drop off early. Once their heads hit the pillows they were dead to the world. You would think they had nothing more on their minds than a pleasant few weeks' outing, so peacefully they slept.

I began to feel like turning in myself. The prospect of bunking in a stateroom with two strange troopers did not frighten me. I was one of them. It was easy to avoid detection. We slept with all our clothes on but our hats and shoes.

In New Mexico, well out of Arizona, it was I first walked forward and passed my husband. I never gave him a glance, but he recognized me. I can't remember exactly what he said, but it was something like "My God, what are you doing here?" He was not as much surprised as I thought he would be. He did not scold me. He was not even angry.

"Now that you are on the train I suppose you might as well go as far as Chicago," he added. "But you will be a good girl and go straight home from there, won't you?"

I told him I would think it over, but I could not promise. I was doing this on my own responsibility, and it was not up to him to interfere. He was quartered three cars ahead of me. I used to sneak forward at night and try to reason with him about my going to France to join the Red Cross.

I was still with the cooks. Whenever I heard any one coming I'd grab a dishpan or something and get very busy. If an officer gave me a suspicious glance I looked him square in the eye and stood at attention like the rest of the doughboys. Army officers are easy to fool.

Sometimes we laid up as long as twenty-four hours in a town. Whenever we stopped the soldiers had to get out and exercise. It was this standing order that gave me my first close call. We had been put on a siding in some town, and the troops were off stretching their legs. I was sitting in a seat talking with a young sergeant when an officer came through.

"What are you two fellows doing here?" he blustered. "Why aren't you out at exercise?" I don't mean he was gruff. The United States army officers treat their men white.

We were on our feet and out of the car in a minute. I turned around and came right back. The "C. O." did not return. He probably thought we were a couple of lazy rookies. There were so many young men among the recruits—mere boys some of them. They had to obtain the consent of their parents before they could enlist. I passed for one of these boy soldiers.

Flirts With Girl.

It was fun stopping at the towns. The people came down to see the troop trains pass through, and they certainly treated us royally. They brought us fruit and candy and cigarettes and all sorts of delicacies. The girls were especially enthusiastic. They struck up conversations with the soldiers, exchanged addresses and promised to write often.

I talked with a number of girls on the way east and managed to fool them

CENTER VIEW

Crops are looking fine since the recent rains.

Farmers are busy cutting tobacco.

Rev. Roberts filled Rev. Brunington's appointment at Coyle's Sunday.

The meeting closed at Mt. Gilead last Tuesday evening. Had a good revival.

There were few, if any, shore leaves after the men boarded the transport. The furthest they went was out on the pier. Across the river, they could see the gay lights of New York beckoning. They had read often of the Great White Way. Few of them had ever seen it. Here they were, within a few minutes of it, yet it might as well have been a thousand miles away.

"I'd like to take just one slant," said a rookie to me one evening, as we were standing on deck, gazing across the river at the mass of lights we knew was New York. He was a big, raw-boned fellow, typical of the west. "I'd like to give the old town the once over as long as I'm going over to fight for her. Gee, look at them lights. Must be a billion of them. And the buildings. Kinda tall, eh? If the Germans ever started shooting at them, good night."

Over on the transport an accordion was whining "Sweet Adeline." It swung into "I've Been Working on the Railroad"—old trouper songs. Then came "Way Down Yonder in the Cornfield." The boys were harmonizing again. Always singing, singing, singing. Music is the safety valve of the soldier.

All the next morning there was an unusual hurrying to get the supplies aboard. We knew the hour of sailing was close at hand, although no orders had been given. You could feel it in the air, the same as you can a strong current of electricity. I had not seen my husband for three days. He was busy aboard the transport, and I kept close to the barge.

Shortly before noon I felt the time had come. I crept up a ladder to the top of the barge. For awhile I stayed there waiting for the way to be clear. Soldiers were hurrying back and forth on deck. No one noticed me. If they did they supposed, of course, I was one of them. I waited until the deck at that part of the transport was free of officers, because I did not want to be questioned just then. There was a period of confusion incident to getting under way. I came up and stepped over on to the deck of the transport.

We were on our way to France.

Stop Crying About the War!

Many mothers are making matters much worse by weeping day in and day out about their sons. War is bad enough without adding any extra sorrow before anything has actually happened. Anna Steese Richardson quotes in the October Woman's Home Companion from a letter written to her. The writer of the letter says:

"Like most mothers who have given sons to their country, I go out when I can to divert my thoughts. And what do I hear? A friend inquires whether I have heard from my boy and adds, 'Well, I never expected to see the time that I would be glad my three children are girls, but I am now.' My next hostess comments on the sadness of our finest young men being sacrificed!

"At prayer meeting last night, the leader, in the voice usually reserved for funerals, spoke of our boys at the front, he was followed by another speaker who solemnly announced the well-authenticated rumor that our boys are taking their coffins with them to France! Next a woman related with harrowing details how her father went to the Civil War, never to return, often stopping to regain her self-control. And the meeting closed with the most melancholy hymn in the book. I feel as if I never want to go to prayer meeting again.

all. There is a packet of mail waiting in France now for Private Leo C. Carter. That is the name I chose. I remember particularly one little girl in a small town in Ohio. She was about twenty years old, dark, very pretty and very sentimental on the subject of soldiers.

"Where do you come from?" she called to me, as I was sitting in the car window.

"Arizona," I replied.

"Where are you going?"

"Somewhere in France," I answered proudly and hopefully too.

She looked so shocked that I got out and talked with her. We chatted for quite awhile. She took my address and said she would keep me posted on things back home when I was in the trenches. I carried the thing through to the end. I even kissed her at parting. She was awfully surprised, but thrilled at the romance of the situation. Being a Romeo is easier than being a soldier.

Just before we reached Chicago my husband came to me and begged me not to go on.

"It will be better for you to go home with the folks," he said. "You can study nursing and enter the Red Cross as soon as you qualify."

"Yes," I replied. "I can spend months in preparation, and when I finish they will send me to the eastern front or put me on some hospital ship or keep me on duty here in the U. S. A. Not for me! I will be no nearer you than I was before. If I go along there will be a chance of my being sent for duty back of your lines. At least I will request that position."

"I command you to return," he said in his severest military manner. "I'll think it over, Corporal Carter," I promised and walked away. When the train pulled out of Chicago I was in the cook car peeling potatoes.

When we arrived in Hoboken the men went straight from the train to the transport. Here again my husband remonstrated with me.

Husband Again Urges Her to Return "You've got away with it this far," he said. "Don't you think it is time to go back?"

"I'll say goodbye, and I'll go—if I can," was my answer.

When the time came I fell in line again with the cooks and went aboard the barge.

The barge was tied alongside the transport where the Eighteenth was embarking. It was piled high with supplies which were being loaded on to the ship. These kept arriving all day and far into the night. Great truck loads of them were emptied out on the deck. This continued during the entire three days we were anchored there. I worked like a Trojan, and my hands were well blistered, but my heart was happy.

There were no sleeping quarters on the barge, but there were plenty of mattresses. The cooks were quartered together. We slept on mattresses thrown on the floor inside the barge cabin. It was not uncomfortable. I used to wake up in the night, look out at the dusky form of the transport swaying gently on the tide and pray I would not be discovered until I was aboard and well out on to the ocean. The boys around me snored peacefully. They had nothing to worry them but the work of unloading the supplies. Every evening there was a crap game in the cabin. It was what you would call a fading game—noisy, with calls for "Little Joe" and the rest. The players got most of their fun out of joshing one another. One man usually took all the money. The next night some fellow—a winner in another game would take it away from him, and so it went. Finally, the lucky survivor had it all.

Kentucky News Cullings

An epitome of most important events transpiring in state

Louisville.—As the result of protests voiced by several delegations of business men before the State Railroad Commission, the Louisville & Nashville railroad withdrew its petition for an increase of 15 per cent in freight rates on coal between Kentucky points.

Winchester.—Walter Holder, charged with desertion from Company C, Second Kentucky Regiment, now stationed at Hattiesburg, Miss., was arrested here by Detective Barnett and taken immediately to Ft. Thomas, where he will be turned over to the military authorities.

Pikesville.—A hung jury was the result in the second trial of C. T. Abele, Covington, former coal broker, charged by indictment in circuit court with having obtained property under false pretenses in Pike county, Ky. A third trial on the charge will be held in February. Abele is held under bond.

Winchester.—Squire Samuel Pursley, one of the county's prominent and wealthiest farmers, was killed near here, and his brother, John Pursley, was perhaps fatally injured when an automobile in which they were returning from Lexington was hit by a fast C. & O. freight train at Pine Grove Station.

Springfield.—Farmers of Washington county are busy cutting tobacco. They state that they have never known a more suitable season for cutting and housing tobacco than that afforded by the weather of the last two weeks. The crop is almost up to the average year in quantity and far above the average in quality.

Barbourville.—Detection from the ranks of the striking coal miners of the Southeastern Kentucky fields is claimed by mine operators of the district, who assert that the strike is failing in its purpose. The claim is made that unmarried men and miners living on farms have been cut off from union benefits.

Neon.—John Allphin, fireman, and two negro passengers were killed and about 20 other negro passengers were injured when a freight locomotive, running wild, crashed into a Louisville & Nashville passenger train about one mile west of here. The locomotive is believed to have been set in motion by a negro who was seen running away.

Hickman.—The first load of cotton this season was just brought in, having been grown by L. B. and Henry Everett on the K. J. W. Ward and C. T. Travis farm, three miles below town, and brought 10 cents in the seed. This cotton was sold to the Hickman Cotton Company, which immediately ginned it and shipped it to Memphis.

Whitesburg.—A large number of good roads boosters representing a number of mountain towns, including Norton, Big Stone Gap and Wise in Virginia, and Jenkins, Pikeville, Jackson and Beattyville, met in Hazard to discuss plans for the building of the Norton-to-Lexington highway, from Norton, in the heart of the Southwest-ern Virginia coal fields.

Owensboro.—J. M. Vaughn filed a petition in Davies county circuit court here asking for the appointment of a receiver for the Ross-Vaughn Tobacco Company of Owensboro, and the granting of an order restraining John Ross, president of the company, from disposing of $35,000 worth of stock owned by Vaughn and held by Ross as collateral on a loan.

Louisville.—While the soldiers, allowed their freedom, lounged about the grounds or indulged in play, an endless procession of automobiles filed past Camp Taylor last Sunday. There was much good-natured shouting between the men inside the grounds and passing autoists, but none were permitted to enter the camp. It was said that another day would be set as visiting day.

Louisville.—Construction of infantry rifle ranges bordering the hills beyond Camp Taylor engaged the attention of Major Frank E. Lamphere, construction quartermaster, on his arrival here after a trip to Washington. Major Lamphere brought word which quieted definitely a persistent rumor that the camp was to be enlarged to accommodate troops from California. Major Lamphere said there will be no expansion of the camp at present.

Richmond.—W. A. Arbuckle, J. T. Curtis and Charles Curtis, large land owners in Madison county, were arrested on charges of hunting game without a license. The warrants were sworn out by Deputy Game Warden W. H. Grider.

Louisville.—A highly contagious disease, which has proved fatal in several cases, has appeared among the horses at Camp Taylor. Ten horses have recently been stricken, and one death resulted. Animals arriving were placed in quarantine.

Louisville.—According to from Hattiesburg, about 100 men are to be sent to Camp Taylor to fill the national guards of Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

Princeton.—Wilbert Riley Goodaker, who was among those notified to appear here as Caldwell's first quota to go to Camp Taylor, was arrested and placed in the county jail. Goodaker has protested against the selective draft and has threatened not to comply with the order.

Versailles.—Elliott Buckner, of Clarksville, Tenn., has been secured as county farm demonstrator for Woodford county, and has entered upon his duties here. Mr. Buckner is a native of Christian county, Ky., and has been engaged in farming and educational work all his life.

Ashland.—Dr. Samuel Preston Fetter and Mrs. Fetter, of Paintsville, have bought the residence of Judge John F. Hager, on Bath avenue. It is understood the deal represented $100,000. Mrs. Fetter was the widow of John C. C. Mayo, the multi-millionaire of Northeastern Kentucky.

Elkton.—Fire destroyed a large tobacco barn and contents on the farm of D. F. Gill, near Allensville, entailing a loss of $2,000, with no insurance. Also a barn containing about 2,000 pounds of tobacco belonging to Leslie Harris, who had responded to his call under the selective draft, was destroyed by fire.

Lexington.—Alleging he had been hampered in his work, and objecting to the appointment of George B. Strader by County Judge Frank A. Ballock to be in charge of an asphalt mixing plant, Robert W. Davis submitted his resignation as county road supervisor to the Fayette fiscal court, and it was accepted by a vote of 6 to 1.

Frankfort.—B. E. Brewer, a soldier in the regular army stationed at Lexington, brought suit in the federal court in this city for $15,000 damages against the Western Union Telegraph Company. He alleges that the company failed to deliver him a telegram at a time when his wife was ill and caused him to make a trip to the Philippine Islands.

Middlesboro.—Attended by a crowd estimated at 2,000 miners, their wives and children, a mass meeting held here was addressed by Vice President Hayes, National Organizer Feeney and President Smith, of District 19. Vice President Hayes asserted that the national organization was not only back of the men in this field, but would remain with them until the strike is won.

Louisville.—An appeal was filed in circuit court by Judge R. W. Bingham, W. R. Kenan, Jr., of New York, and William A. Blount, executors of the will of Mary Lily Flagler Bingham, in which the appellants seek to set aside the court order appointing the Fidelity and Columbia Trust Company and the Louisville Trust Company as joint administrators of the Bingham estate.

Whitesburg.—The Hardshell Baptists of the Sandlick church, near Whitesburg, held their annual three days' meeting which was attended by ministers from both Kentucky and Virginia. Sermons were preached by Elders Wilson Church, of Virginia; James Hudson, of Pike county; Thomas Kelley, Knott county; James Hall, of Perry, and Marion Blair, of Colly.

Bowling Green.—Dewey Chancellor, Pat Newkirk and William Donahue are held here awaiting the arrival of an army squad to take them back to Georgia. The former is charged with being a deserter from the 4th Virginia Infantry, and Newkirk with being absent without permission from Company M, 5th Georgia Infantry, according to telegrams received from here from army officers.

Lexington.—In compliance with a notification received from Washington calling on Kentucky to furnish 600 telegraph operators for service in the signal corps branch of the army, Judge Lyman B. Chalkley, of the Council of National Defense for Fayette county, has conferred with Dr. McVey, the new president of the University of Kentucky, with the purpose of placing a school of telegraphy at that institution.

Lexington.—Following a meeting of citizens here at which the strike of coal miners in the Kentucky-Tennessee field and the threatening coal famine were discussed, a telegram was sent by Mayor James C. Rogers and others to President Wilson, Secretary of Labor Wilson, Senators James and Beckham, Congressman Cantrill, Fuel Administrator Garfield and Governor Stanley, urging quick action to hasten a conclusion of the negotiations with respect to the price of coal in this state and to secure an adjustment of the labor troubles in the mining district of Southeastern Kentucky.

Carlisle.—Growers of this county report that high prices are being offered for the 1917 tobacco crop, one grower near this city reporting that he sold his crop to a speculator at $20 per 100 pounds for all grades.

Louisville.—County Judge Green refused to renew a tavern license in this county, and this action indicates that fifty saloons in the county will be put out of existence because they fall within the five-mile radius the government fixed for Camp Taylor outside the city limits.

(Above prizes were open to the State)

FALL TIPS.

A youthful sash tied at the back or the slightly raised waist line is one advance fad. Lines are straighter, waist lines more fitted. Large, crushy collars and pockets persist, as do the rippling shoulder capes falling from beneath the big collars. Some pockets show only vertical slits. Skirts are not too short, and a military touch here and there is never a mistake. There are many colors which will do, not to speak of the ever good black and navy. They include myrtle and balsam among the greens, bay leaf and fox, Java brown, taupe and plum colors. As for materials, duvetyne, velours and broadcloths are among the best.

FALL BLOUSES.

The peasant or smock style of blouse and the waistcoat blouse with directoire basque will take precedence over the ordinary waist this fall.

A recent novelty which is proving enormously popular is the waistcoat-sweater blouse, made of jersey in silk or fiber silk. This is somewhat of a sports garment.

THE PROPER COURSE

Information of Priceless Value to Every Cloverport Citizen.

How to act in an emergency is knowledge of inestimable worth, and this is particularly true of the diseases and ills of the human body. If you suffer with kidney backache, bladder disorders, or any form of kidney trouble, the advice contained in the following statement should add a valuable asset to your store of knowledge. What could be more convincing proof of the efficiency of Doan's Kidney Pills than the statement of a Cloverport woman who used them and who publicly tells of the benefit derived?

Mrs. J. H. Brown, Main street, Cloverport, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills, in the past, which I procured at Wedding's Drug Store. From the benefit I received from their use I am only too glad to recommend or advise their use to others as Doan's Kidney Pills have proved perfectly satisfactory to me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Brown had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Suter, who are managers of T. N. McGlothlin's hardware store, received the prize of $2.50 for the best window display at the Country Fair. Mr. and Mrs. Suter donated the prize to the building of the Baptist church.

A. F. Schindler wants your vote for marshal of Irvington. Citizens ticket. —Adv.

Mrs. Flake Ater won the prize for the best truck garden display of $3, which she gave to the building fund of the Baptist church.

The Red Cross Society added twenty-three names to its membership during the Country Fair.

Ed Morrison will give a social on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. N. McGlothlin. Each guest will take one penny for every letter in their name, and the total amount of pennies will be given to the building fund of the Baptist church.
